2. Faculty members of the School of Architecture: 04

The main objective of the expert lecture was to gain knowledge on the compilation of portfolio and pointers on how to suit the presentation for the review

Lecture Outcomes:

The session was conducted by Ar Sneha Murthy covered various aspects of portfolio preparation such as submission format, inclusions and exclusions, describing site visits, variety of drawings worked on such that a good cross section of the learning can be presented. The quantity and quality of drawings required for various projects were covered in detail. Ar. Sneha emphasized that while talking about the firm, and the chief architect under whom the student trained, it was equally important to weave it around their own personal story and connect. The session then proceeded to display sample portfolios and bring out the highlights among them with respect to content, legibility and presentation style. Prof. Rajesh malik drew attention to the inclusions that were mandatory such as completion certificates, size and composition, duration given for the student and the ethics to be followed.

The IXth Sem B.Arch., students were able to understand the various aspects that go into portfolio preparation and put into perspective their role in professional training.

The session was very much informative, and students participated in interactive discussion and were able to get clarity on the outcome expected.

The image shows a Zoom meeting interface with a presentation slide displayed. The slide is titled "PORTFOLIO SAMPLES" and lists seven points:

1. Clarity in drawings - good quality and resolution.
2. Clarity in role – what have you done in drawing – reference, drafted, revised
3. Know your drawings - measurements, materials, specifications, details
4. Quest for knowledge – what, why, how? Reasoning
5. Involvement in work
6. Highlight Learning from the project
7. Document even the smallest task

The slide also features the REVA logo and the website address www.reva.edu.in at the bottom. The Zoom interface includes a list of participants on the right, with names like Sneha M, PREKSHA U, SACHIN P, and RM visible. The top of the screen shows the Microsoft PowerPoint application window.
